

CHIPPER JONES

Chipper Jones was a third baseman who spent his entire nineteen-year MLB career playing for the Atlanta Braves and all twenty-three years as a professional baseball player in the Braves organization after being the first overall pick of the club in the 1990 MLB Draft. Chipper is an eight-time All-Star, the 1999 National League MVP, and 2008 National League Batting Champion. When his career was finished, Chipper had amassed the most RBIs in the history of baseball for a third baseman and stands as the only switch hitter in the history of baseball to finish his career with a .300 average, .400 on base percentage and .500 slugging percentage, all while hitting 468 HRs. He retired in 2012 and was elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame in 2018. He lives in Atlanta with his wife and family and is the proud father to 7 healthy boys.
